IMPORTANT NOTICE

If you are a subscriber to The Due Process Advocate, registered for online access to Due Process 101, and/or a Client, Contributor, Sponsor, Supporter, or Advocate of the ongoing mission to restore due process rights; please accept my sincere thanks for your involvement and participation in the long-overdue mission to restore individual due process rights and end “arbitrary rule” in America.

If you are new to the movement to restore due process, this information may be of special interest to you - especially you are frustrated in dealing with an important legal issue where your individual due process rights, or the rights of a family member, have been denied.

In fact, due process rights are currently being denied to more Americans than ever before. As you may have already experienced, courts and government agencies often hear “only what they want to hear” and are not interested in the real story. Therefore, without aggressively asserting your due process rights, your chances of winning a case are drastically reduced. Do not believe that your due process rights are automatically protected in the legal system! Your due process rights are protected by the Constitution, but you have the major responsibility to protect your rights. In the final analysis, this means you have to be careful who you are doing business with, what you sign or agree to, and exactly what your rights are in any type of a legal proceeding.

In order to protect your due process rights, please consider taking advantage of any or all of the following due process resources (if you haven't already done so):

1. Get a FREE online subscription to The Due Process Advocate to have each future edition arrive via email to your Inbox (simply visit www.dueprocessadvocate.com and click on “FREE SUBSCRIPTION”);
2. Register for online access to DUE PROCESS 101 if you are dealing with an urgent matter and you need to immediately get “up to speed” on the realities about protecting and asserting your due process rights in the legal arena (a Registration Form with instructions is at the bottom of the Due Process 101 “About” page at www.dueprocessadvocate.com); and
3. Get immediate feedback regarding a specific due-process related legal issue, inquiry, or concern. All of the following are legal actions that, typically, involve specific due process rights that are being overlooked or not enforced: collections, small claims, accident claims, driving citations, wrongful employment terminations, foreclosures, evictions, divorce, child custody and support disputes, bankruptcy, probate matters, arrests, criminal citations, and many more!

The Due Process Advocate promotes the only program of its kind in the country - and I believe you'll benefit substantially from your participation - as so many others have over the past several years.

Thank you for your interest,
